EVERY soul
In this neck of woods
Should throw up his hat
And shout for the Dudes,
And tell to the world,
While flinging his hat,
How the Dudes jumped on 'em
And mashed 'em out flat.

DOC BAGGS AND HIS SAFE.

Herculean Feat of the Celebrated Confidence Operator.
Kansas City Star.

A good story is told of Dr. Baggs, the most celebrated bunko man in the world. When the Black Hills were first opened, and pilgrims from all parts of the country were making their way to the land of gold, Dr. Baggs, with his usual business foresight, picked on Deadwood as a good place for a temporary residence, and soon had his Kentucky lottery apparatus and bunko lay-out properly displayed in a dingy room in a large frame building there. In one corner stood the huge green safe, with its brass knobs and heavy hinges, the wonder of all who came into the office. It was the first safe ever seen in Deadwood, and had a very imposing appearance.

One night the building caught fire. Baggs could not save his effects, but he hated to see the safe, the supposed repository of all his wealth, go by the board. Without waiting to fold it up, he shouldered the precious article, which did not weigh more than twenty pounds, and trotted with it down stairs to a place of safety. He was ever afterward looked upon with wonder and admiration, and accounted the strongest man in Deadwood.

Anna Dickinson once set out to learn German, but after spending $15 for books, $20 for a teacher and $4 for a pair of wooden shoes, she stopped on "yaw," and is there yet.—Detroit Free Press.

A pretty custom, which has since been followed, was introduced at a fashionable wedding recently at the Savoy Chapel Royal, London. The choir formed a procession down the aisle to meet the bride, and then walked back before her to their places in the church chanting a bridal hymn. A moral support is thus given to a faltering girl, who has usually to walk up the aisle the observed of all observers, and overhearing, perhaps, remarks on the redness of her nose or some defect in her dress, not very reassuring. After the ceremony the choir again formed in procession and walked before the bride and groom down the aisle to the entrance gate.

How to Shorten Life.

The receipt is simple. You have only to take a violent cold and neglect it. Aberrantly, the great English surgeon, asked a lady who told him she only had a cough: "What would you have? The plague?" Beware of "only coughs." The worst cases can, however, be cured by Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs. In whooping cough and croup it immediately allays irritation, and is sure to prevent a fatal termination of the disease. Sold by druggists.

probably had good teeth, seeing that he so speedily demolished the most substantial provender on the shortest notice. Nothing excepting a good appetite conduces to the pleasures of eating, as a good set of grinders. To possess them use Sozodont, the great dental invigorator beautifying agents. Yellow, tartar covered teeth grow pearly white and the gums acquire ruddiness and form a pleasing contrast to the snow hue of the teeth when it is used.
